

Deregulation will not be beneficial to the United States. It will lead to a lack of competition in news reporting agencies as large companies with tons of money buy out smaller, independent companies. The quality and objectiveness of new reporting will go downhill, leaving the American public more ignorant than ever on world affairs, politics, etc. Energy deregulation looked like a good idea, too, but just look at what happened in California and Arizona when large companies became monopolies.